Join us

for a dynamic, full-day anesthesia program focused on the realities of modern office-based OMS practice. Through engaging, case-based discussions, this course will provide practical guidance on contemporary anesthesia management, evolving medication considerations, and coordinated team response in the office setting.

Topics will include:

- Marijuana and office anesthesia
- GLP-1 medications and aspiration risk
- Opioid chest wall rigidity
- Propofol neuroexcitation
- Perioperative allergic reactions and anaphylaxis
- ACE inhibitors/ARBs and perioperative hypotension
- Serotonin syndrome
- Seizure management in the office
- Contemporary opioid strategies in anesthesia

Designed for both OMS and office staff, this program emphasizes real-world clinical recognition, practical management strategies, and effective team communication to support safe, efficient, and high-quality patient care.

About the Speaker

Dr. Adlesic is Associate Professor of Oral and Maxillofacial Surgery and Dental Anesthesiology at the University of Pittsburgh, current President of the American Dental Society of Anesthesiology (ADSA), and a nationally recognized lecturer in office-based anesthesia. He is a Fellow of AAOMS and ADSA, Diplomate of ABOMS and the National Dental Board of Anesthesiology and currently serves on the Professional Advisory Council for the Malignant Hyperthermia Association of North America.
